Macron’s European Army Idea

The idea on the creation of a European army is back to debates. French president Macron, backed by German Chancellor Merkel, speak out in support of this idea at the expense of Europe’s important defence ally, USA. The question that everyone asks now is how feasible or realist this idea is. In other terms, does it worth cloud the water for a project full of uncertainties. The paper gives a brief insight into modern challenges of the idea on a European army.
